

Opportunity Evaluator

God gives signs along the way in evaluating opportunities-- some point clearly toward accepting a call, while others suggest being cautious or even turning it down. In many ways, evaluating a call is like approaching a stoplight: a clear green signal opens the way, while yellow and red indicate the need for slowing down or stopping altogether.

When in the process of evaluation, I recommend listing out the signs that God has revealed as you have gotten to know the church. An overwhelming majority of "green light" indicators may override even some strong reds, but a significant number of reds or even yellows may be God showing you to stop with this opportunity and keep moving elsewhere.
